

Full entry into force of the Association Agreement between the European Union and Moldova in July 2016 is generating U.S. business interest in this market. For U.S. companies based in the region and responsible for Moldova, we offer an opportunity to gain insight into Moldova’s political and economic environment, and to help evaluate the opportunities and challenges it offers.

The U.S. Embassies in Kyiv, Bucharest and Chisinau would like to invite you to join a trade delegation to participate in a special program during the upcoming Moldova Business Week in Chisinau the week of June 5, 2017 (TBC).

FORMAT

Whether your company is doing business in Moldova already, or considering the market for the first time, you will gain a greater understanding of the objectives and intentions of Moldova’s government leaders, and receive the in-country perspectives of multilateral financing institutions, and other businesses. The U.S. Embassy in Chisinau, with the Government of Moldova, will organize an exclusive program to help inform and refine your business strategy for Moldova.

- ◆ A format that provides valuable information, contact and dialogue with the Government of Moldova officials at an appropriate level, and informal networking receptions would fulfill these goals.

HOW TO PARTICIPATE

U.S. companies, investors, and advisors are welcome to participate from offices in the United States, Europe, Ukraine, Romania or other regions. The total number of participants in the program will be limited in order to maintain a scale that is both interactive and informal.

Participants will be asked to provide a short description of their firms and their objectives in participating to the U.S. Embassy in Chisinau, so that we may insure that the program is relevant and valuable.

The cost to participate per person is US$600 and includes all meetings, reception and administrative costs. Each participant is responsible for the costs of accommodation, travel or site visit. Payment and other instructions will be provided subsequent to receiving your expression of interest.
